Westmeath Examiner (Published)

Dear Editor

Could the following be considered for publication in your letters page please:

Bulldozers, those obliterators of historical edifices, in yet another act of licensed destruction on order of the National Roads Authority, have destroyed the 2,000 year old ring fort three miles to the south of Mullingar town at Tudenham.

This is certainly 'getting it wrong Westmeath Examiner 22nd October 2005 Agreed too that this is an act of serious vandalism to our Irish Heritage.

You get it wrong though, if I may say so, when you write that Nobody has raised a hand to shout stop.

The Kelly family, their relatives and friends and members of the Westmeath Environmental Group have constantly campaigned year in year out and in every way within their power to have this historic site preserved for posterity.

Yours sincerely,

John Kelly
Mullingar, County Westmeath
